

New opportunities for processes and products in the cement and concrete sector

Construction materials can play an important role for sustainability:

- Improvement of production process with carbon capture
- Valorization of decarbonation contribution of cement materials in service life
- Contribution of cement to sustainability: decreasing of embodied carbon and increasing of circularity
- Enlargement of concrete structures service life with regeneration products